For more than twenty years Metro Environmental has been an essential partner on several of our more complicated, specialized dehumidification air handler systems. Their close involvement and patient support have allowed us to furnish integrated solutions to some of our more demanding customers. Because of their rare ability to understand not just control systems, but also specialized mechanical systems, they complement our company's capabilities.

Metro Environmental has assisted us in the successful design of systems for widely varied industries including validated pharmaceutical projects, aircraft structural manufacturing plant HVAC systems, municipal water treatment facilities, indoor ice arenas, surgical suite environmental control air handlers, and custom systems for the automotive industry.

Additionally, they have always provided steadfast after-sale support of our equipment, often traveling to remote locations and harsh conditions in order to assist us with commissioning our equipment.

We consider Metro Environmental to be unique. No similar entity groups these capabilities under one roof. We always look forward to working with their capable staff when it is important for us to succeed with demanding project requirements.

Sincerely,
